

Please record my feelings on the use of animals in testing.

I am completely against the use of animals to test for effects on humans. Firstly, I do not consider myself superior to other living creatures, therefore would never wish for an animal to consciously be made to suffer, or sacrifice its life for my benefit. Secondly because the results can never be conclusive if tested on anything but humans.

The use of synthesised in vitro testing, without using live creatures represents progress for humanity in every sense.

I hope for wisdom and compassion in your decision making and thank you from the heart for your time and consideration.

Hilary Field